

60000871624.txt

Net neutrality regulations could have the power to stifle or preserve technological innovation and freedom of speech, as well as influence how quickly you get emails, whether your Netflix streams buffer, and how much you pay for Internet connection and services that exist there.

We are all watching this closely, we are paying more and receiving less and less in services from cable companies, the average american household living on a fixed budget can barely afford cable for their children to do their homework. you need to stop this senseless greed now.