ACD is a commercial entity for profit. There is a contradiction with ACD providing neutral and unbiased frequency coordination. As a public safety official, I oppose ACD becoming a Public Safety Frequency Coordinator. APCO has always served the needs of public safety. There is no reason or justification for allowing or approving this certification.

ACD is not representative of any public safety group or association.

There are ethical issues here. A private entity has only their customer's interest in mind, and can leverage frequency coordination to benefit their paying customers.

Another concern would be more consultants coming forward wanting to handle our frequency coordination.

There is no apparent benefit for the FCC to grant ACD Telecom's petition request to be certified as a public safety coordinator as ACD is not a representative of any public safety group or association.
