

Service providers already aren't competing for our dollar. This tier system is just a disgusting display of greed which was forced through with lobbying funds paid to those whom care about their position or pocket books more than any kind of ethical standard. Why squeeze out the small businesses you hail as the next great generation of innovators for those who already have more than enough, and all they give back is the shittiest service on the fucking planet... suck it, and good day.