Dear Sir or Ms. ,

If our nation looses NET NEUTRALITY, then there will be more profit for internet companies, and no better service to the consumer. John Oliver of HBO informed his audience that the U S has very poor internet service compared to East Bloc nations. As an executive stated in the segment of HBO's program, the internet companies have protected territory. There is only one provider in each market. The internet companies have a monopoly already, and as a result, have poor service. We have internet for phone, internet and TV--our bills are $240 a month! The internet companies are making great profits--time to draw a line in the sand.
