Congratulations! Chairman Wheeler has demonstrated exactly what I expected of him. Desperate boot-licking of the major cable companies as if it is their opinions that actually matter. But what should one expect from a former corporate goon who still bows under his master's whip?

"Split the baby" you say? Do you not realize that you don't work for AT&T, Comcast, or Time-Warner? You are in your position solely because the citizen of the country allow it.

We demand net neutrality and we will have it, regardless of your incessant grovelling at the feet of your corporate overlords or not.
