I didn't think censorship was allowed in this country. By Comcast & At&t and Direct TV stating that they will cater to the urban communities and not the rural is what I call censorship. They are not allowing RFD-TV to be carried on their systems and that is the reason that they are giving. I can understand if RFD-TV is way over-priced - that would be a business move. But, to come out and boldly state that they want to abandon a large portion of the U.S. population is a biased remark.
