The freedom of consumer choice is something that should never be up for debate. I strongly believe that Net Neutrality must be protected at all costs. The current failures of the FCC have already created an oligopoly, removing the benefit consumers receive from an open and free market. Eliminating Net Neutrality not only empowers the oligopoly, it creates the potential to reduce e-commerce growth by creating barriers for new business. Unfairly limiting or preventing customers from visiting websites on the basis of delivery speed is a form of censorship. The use of the internet is a RIGHT not a privilege. This country can no longer support the few at the cost of the masses. I implore you, the FCC, to do the right thing and stand up for the people you were created to protect. Show the world that unethical behavior in this United States will no longer be tolerated.
