

60000987015.txt

All other telecommunication services must abide by common carrier rules under the Telecommunications Act of 1996. So how come the internet equivalent of common carrier (net neutrality) is such a struggle to secure? Listen to the people. We don't businesses interfering with our free speech. The internet is a free and open medium that we all use and rely on. Let's keep it that way.