

60000987694.txt

The FCC should reclassify broadband internet as a telecommunications (or "Common carrier") service.

The internet is a way that we manifest our freedom of speech and is similarly a way for us to obtain free, empowering information. This information flow should not be corrupted by corporate influence any more than it already is.