

60001011729.txt

Please move the internet back to the status of a public utility. The essential nature of the internet to broad areas of American life should clearly demonstrate it is a public good. The faster rates and lower costs of European and Asian providers demonstrate that absent public utility style regulation Americans will continue to experience slower speed and higher costs with negative effects on commerce and quality of life.