

Regarding Proceeding RM-11737, I urge the FCC to reject in its entirety Marriott's argument that suppressing the private networks of their hotel guests in some manner enhances security? Granting Marriott's petition would force its guests to pay for Wi-Fi while attending conferences. As a small business owner I need constant access to the Internet to confer with clients and run my business. I see a serious issue with any organization attempting to block use of my private cells' Wi-Fi for the main purpose of profit. Marriott's claims of fear of terrorists is bogus, it's about profit. Any organization has the right to set conditions upon the use of its own network. However, that does not give organizations the right to restrict the lawful use of private networks. Moreover, the FCC has in previously ruled against the use of equipment that block or jams the lawful use of private networks. Please reject the Marriott's petition.
