

60001012244.txt

I would hope that the FCC sees beyond the money to be made by the hotel industry. Even if the hotels begin to offer free wifi across the board, there are still only so many connections, so I don't see where their argument goes about filling up the airways with connections. I already pay for the hotspot capability on my smart phone, secured with my own password. Hackers hack the hotel...and where does that take anybody?