I am a private citizen whose cellphone has been receiving unwanted robocalls, despite such calls being illegal under the TCPA and my phone number being registered under the Do Not Call database. Some of these robocalls have included those with fraudulent Caller IDs and questionable offers of items such as vacation cruises. These calls amount to little more than "voice spam" that waste my time and calling plan minutes. Moreover, it is reasonable to assume that some individuals have been duped by these robocalls into providing sensitive personal and financial information for purposes of ID theft and larceny.

For these reasons, I urge you to keep the current prohibition on robocalls to cellphones in place with no additional exceptions. We consumers do not need to be deluged with unsolicited calls and dangerous "voice spam."
