

60001013855.txt

ISPs already have a lot of power and they constantly abuse it. Giving them more power is not only a terrible idea but a moronic idea as well. We don't need to give ISPs more ways to make more money, we have to make them give a service that is worth the money they are making. And right now it is still far from that.