My husband and I receive multiple daily phone calls on both our cell phones and our home phones from robo callers selling all manner of items or services that we neither want or need. Most of the time when we answer, the caller simply hangs up. If there is a person, and we say we are on the no-call list, they hang up before the sentence is finished. We have tried to keep track of the multiple numbers and reported them to no avail. If you try to call back the numbers, there is a message saying it's not a working number. The calls come from all over the country - it is annoying and potentially dangerous to older consumers and the do not call system does not work. Please do something to stop these calls. Thank you.
