Dear FCC, I have recently heard about the Net Neutrality movement that's basically going to make people buy just to be able to go on it which is, and always has been the worst idea that I have ever heard. Why would these cable companies, who are obviously already making money as we speak, should be the ones that deserve to do this greedy crime by taking the people's freedom of going on the internet? Because, in my opinion no one would ever on there computer's ever again if this is even past, making Net Neutrality pointless. Because, why on earth would I want to go on the internet if I have to pay for something that everyone else in every other country isn't paying for? I mean, honestly why would this be far for any of us who goes on the internet almost everyday of our lives? What, because it would give these companies some big bucks if you go along with this? Well, let me remind you that the only reason why these companies are around in the first place, is because there already making big money to begin with. So, how come these big companies want more money, when there already big companies making more money then everyone else? Seriously, this entire topic is frustrating me more than anything else because the fact that this idea could be consider a good idea, and not a back fire for the people of America, is unbelievably the most insane thing that I have ever heard. So, what I am trying to tell you is that this entire Net Neutrality movement shouldn't even come to pass. Because, may I remind you that I am one out of hundreds upon thousands of people who has been typing to you the same comment that I am typing to you right now while only 20 or so companies are telling you to pass this law? Yeah, if I were you then I would listen to what the people have to say since there actually right, when these companies are absolutely wrong. So, I thank you for your time reading my own little document I guess I can say, talking about the matter of Net Neutrality is the worst idea that I ever heard in my life. And hopefully, just like what happened with SOPA, that the public's freedom of speech which has been passed down to us from the late 1700's to now, wins this little war for the sack of the internet once and for all. Thank you.
