I am adamant in my position that NOTHING must be allowed to circumvent Net Neutrality. I am greatly concerned that the person in charge of your government department is the past head of the lobby group speaking for Telecom company interests. This link quite clearly expresses my views succinctly:

I don't see you as the watchdog for the best interests of the public. I see you as a potential problem because of your leader's extreme conflict of interest. This is my clear and unequivocal statement that for the best interests of you and your families' futures -- not just mine - I encourage you the readers of these comments to do all you can to make sure that Net Neutrality is preserved with no back-door mechanisms to subvert it left in place.
