

60001035545.txt

The internet should remain a free and open area for exchange of goods & services, ideas, and enlightenment. Companies should not be allowed to charge a premium for certain companies if they're using more data. People depend on the internet not just for entertainment but for searching for jobs, education, health care, and other life necessities. Government should not be a regulatory body regarding the internet and its use or cost.