The fact that this is even a thing is bloody insane. Maybe my comment will be rendered void by the time this is posted because you guys have ruled against net neutrality, which I totally expect you to do, what with your fucking chairman being an ex-lobbyist for TELECOMMUNICATIONS COMPANIES. Like Holy Shit, thats crazy. Anywho, I just wanna say that its really fucking blows that government can be so in the pocket of big, monopolized companies that it actively hinders creativity, aspirations, hardwork, and success. Values that, you would think, government would seek to uphold. If this passes, we might as stop calling it a free market. At least have the decency to stop bullshitting behind jargon and elusive language, and call this what it is. Oppression.
