

60001036018.txt

It is in the best interest of the general public to protect and promote net neutrality. The internet is indeed a powerful tool used to spread information. Granting internet providers, in effect, the ability to affect how information spreads is AGAINST the public interest.