

60001037643.txt

I want to thank the FCC commissioners who voted recently for net neutrality. Like the one commissioner said, not voting for net neutrality is in complete opposition of our 1st amendment right to free speech. And corporations wishing to make the Internet a "privilege" we pay for by their rules need to know the Internet is a right to free speech.

When times of being discouraged regarding our elected officials not listening to the average Joe/Josephine, the FCC approval of net neutrality is a breath of fresh air to my political lungs.

"No one Cares how much you know until they know how much you Care" - Theodore Roosevelt

Thank you,
Susan Echenrode