

60001041374.txt

I am concerned that in switching the company responsible for overseeing the portability of phone numbers, you are looking more at saving money or securing favor than at a sensible act.

The portability goes well beyond just the phone numbers and market competition but is so crucial to our national security it should not be given to the lowest bidder.

Like everything else in life, we get what we pay for.

by looking only at the money saved we leave ourselves vulnerable to chaos and opportunistic terrorism.