I am shocked that the FCC still allows rapacious companies and prison systems to charge the families of prisoners exorbitant rates for telephone calls. I have no connection to the corrections system but I find this grossly unfair and contrary to the principals this country stands for. I would like the FCC to ban prison concession fees, and to limit the cost of prison phone calls. There are better ways for a prison to raise money than to impose ridiculous fees on people who have no other options. And it certainly doesn't help rehabilitate prisoners if we limit their access to the families by taxing their phone calls.

Sincerely,

Andy Aaron
