Re: MB Docket No. 14-90

Dear Ms. Dortch:

MasTec Advanced Technologies (“MasTec”) would like to join the chorus of those supporting the above-captioned transaction.

MasTec is the second largest Hispanic-owned company in the United States. We have more than 17,000 employees, and have been certified as a Minority-Controlled Company by the National Minority Suppliers Development Council (NMSDC).

We are also one of the largest DIRECTV installation and service companies in the United States. We serve over 200,000 customers each month in single family homes or local businesses. We currently operate in over 36 DMA's and 52 local offices nationwide to deliver the ultimate television viewing customer experience.

Some may believe that the era of true customer service has become a lost art for businesses in today's fast paced world. This misconception has been quickly erased in the minds of the DIRECTV customers we serve. Since August 2009, MasTec Advanced Technologies has earned some of the highest customer satisfaction rating in the Home Service Provider (HSP) Network.

Representing the face and/or brand of DIRECTV, our satellite technicians receive the highest level of support and ongoing training directly from our senior leadership, field operations, customer service, human resources and supporting staff teams.

After completing a thorough screening process, MasTec technicians undergo a rigorous training platform. They become experts in product knowledge, performing installation best practices, customer education, addressing customer service concerns and most importantly, how to remain safe on the job.

We are excited about the possibilities that the DIRECTV-AT&T transaction will bring. Among other things, AT&T has promised to bring fixed wireless broadband services to millions of rural Americans. And AT&T will lend its financial and infrastructure strength to DIRECTV. This translates into new and better services for more Americans. It also translates into new and better opportunities for companies like MasTec.

We are eager to compete for these new opportunities. We hope the FCC approves the merger quickly so that we can begin doing so.

Yours truly,
