

No more than two days of seven day rental period were used before the room at the Desert Sands has started to show signs of burglary. A Booger was on the screen of the T.V. set after returning from a restaurant at El Sarape's. The restaurant which was closed for months has reopened after being remodeled and the first meal was good yesterday but followed by a pre-prepared food that was served cold today. Previously I thought that the restaurant was closed do to use of motor oil in cooking of the eggs. The same unfriendly woman that used to work there before the restaurant's closing was working there today when serving the not freshest cheese enchalada's. Before leaving for the restaurant this morning a housekeeper started to open the door to the room without my consent (they usually only give maid service once a week for weekly rental's). After returning from the restaurant I noticed that there was a booger on the T.V. screen that was not on the T.V. screen when I left the motel. When I talked to a the man at the front desk on the land line phone about people making noise in the room above me he said that the manager stays in the room above me and that he doesn't know how far he would get (if he talked to them about the noise). This morning it looked as if numerous Native American Indians were playing around the door of the room above me with the door open. After noticed the booger on the T.V. screen I noticed two people came out of the room immediately to the south of me (a husband and wife (presumably)) that got in a white SUV and backed out of the space to face towards the south before turning 180 degrees to the left to exit from the North side of the parking lot (with the licence tag ??? SW?) and then was followed by another vehicle with two Eastern Indian lady's with the licence tag Jay 106. I was disconnected during a call to the police regarding the "suspicious" activity of the two vehicles. Perhaps the vehicle with the licence tag JAY 106 could have woman that were witnessing a burglary and have the licence tag of the vehicle with the two Native American adults that joined the children that were in the white (if I remember the color correctly) SUV. Perhaps we can see if the behavior of the crowd around the room continues.

Thank You,

P.S. I was not connected from the pay phone at the gas station next to the Carl's Jr the other day after the police disconnected a call after a man at the Holiday Inn Express walked out of the back office suddenly and made a threat to throw my bicycle out and then throw me out. He yelled something similar to "I will throw your fucking bicycle out and then I will throw you out", after walking out of the office suddenly (possibly after asking if jacquine (SP?) was the real name of the woman (other than the woman named Savannah). The manager (presumably) that was dressed in black walked into the convenience store (Circle K) next to the Holiday Inn Express (on Alameda 87013 was the zip code on a receipt from a nearby business). The voice recording on the pay phone for the fcc (12th street) said something like "please hold on for a moment" repeatedly. Also the copyright technology office would not answer from the Motorola cell phone with a 314 area code that I had with me. Other difficulties with phone calls going through occurred when I tried to dial the enterprise rental car agency and possibly a fraudulent conversation with the Pizza 9 at the corner of Paseo Del Norte and Wyoming when the woman was saying that one specialty pizza was $20 from the Motel six on the Pan American Freeway at 8450 Pan American Frwy (approximate address) after a suspected poisoning of some watered down starbucks coffee (although some other people may think that maybe ""Energy drinks are the culprit"").
