

The nuance and complexity of Mr. Oxenford's steering 'workaround' is breathtakingly cynical even to a seasoned veteran of media executive perfidy such as myself. Simply put, the FCC is under mandate to license public airwaves. The wholesale heist of the public trust by Pandora and their ilk induce me to plead; please don't lend your office to the corruption. Future generations may ask, "What did you do during the culture wars?" I hope your answer is a proud one. "I stopped megacorporations from destroying songwriters and the hard working middle class families who depend on them."
