Comment: I suggest this solution: maintain the requirement that NSI phones be supported for 911 calls, but also require the cell service provider to forward an indicator to the emergency agency that the call is being transmitted with an NSI phone. Then that agency can decide how they might respond differently. For a health emergency, there might not be a difference. For a situation where a SWAT team might be deployed, there might be additional safeguards when calls originate from NSI phones.
