Net neutrality is really essential. The fact that I barely understand where to lodge my complaint and that this comment could be more relevant in one of the other hundred proceedings on this website is ridiculous. This insane and impossible to navigate government bureaucracy is part of the problem. Normal people cannot participate in government and communicate their issues because they don't know where to go to be heard. Please continue to keep the internet an equal playing ground. This isn't how the free market has worked out, so why create new regulations. Hopefully you got into the policy business with good intentions and please remember them. Protect people and their internet.
