Everyone wants net neutrality and for it to be enforced. The fact that Tom Wheeler is now the head of the F.C.C. is extremely questionable considering he is a former lobbyist for the cable companies. The only people wanting to get rid of net neutrality are the cable companies because they profit from it. The people are not happy and the big companies like Google are also not happy. I guarantee that if this guy starts supporting Comcast and Times Warner Cable something will be done. These companies spend billions lobbying and do not provide good customer satisfaction. They are simply monopolies. It's time we end these monopolies and protect the free and open internet from these companies.
