

60001077569.txt

Net neutrality needs to be protected as it stands now. The people who would make more money from this change have enough money. It is morally reprehensible to consider giving service providers any authority over the speed at which content is delivered. Believe in the American Dream, don't kill it.