Several months have passed yet fcc reg Antenna 1029953 wndy tv23 remains with communication failure despite bringing this to the attention of the fcc, faa, county and state police. The state police haven't set themselves up correctly nor properly and uniformly to rectify. They forward the call without input from the caller to a department which doesn't handle these types of antennas not owned by the state police. The fcc phone number listed for antenna lights not functioning indicates a policeman must make the phone call complaint to the Fcc. This means a officer must drive around the antenna to view from all sides for which they havnt been trained to do and perhaps make a visual observation from one vantage point which perhaps explains why this safety issue remains so many months later contrary to fcc rules and regulations

Regardless that the station owning the antenna informed the fcc many months ago of the antenna failure not all flights are filed with a flight plan which might indicate visual communication with the tower is hit and miss or may indicate no communication errors exist if other departments are also struggling with filing and communication issues as so many state and private entities are these days
