We need to keep cable companies from lobbying to disrupt the neutrality of our internet. The net is the only place where the heart of capitalism still beats, and big business wants to destroy that for its own profit. Arguably, allowing them to do so would feed the selfishness and corruption that has become an ingrained part of capitalism as we know it today, but do any of you really want to see that continue? This is your chance to stand up and fight back against a tradition of economic sickness. Keep the internet an equal playing field.
