Re: The Transition of the countries Communications Infrastructure>>Re: Universal Service (Specifically LANDLINES), I guess one big item that you folks at the FCC seem to forget is that there are still many many many people in this country that live rurally, like my Sis In Law, way back in the hills of El Dorado Calif, and nothing, and I mean NOTHING, but a landline and only dial up, works back there, not even a cell phone (ALL CARRIERS). That is why we have all been paying that surcharge for, "Universal Service," so ALL CAN get phone service. Until either fiber optic by Telco, or Cable runs back in ALL those sites, ain't gonna happen McGee.
