Re: Notice of Ex Parte Communication, MB Docket 13-249, Revitalization of the AM Radio Service
("Notice")

Review of the Emergency Alert System (EB Docket No. 04-296); Recommendations of the Independent Panel Reviewing the Impact of Hurricane Katrina on Communications Networks (EB Docket 06-119)

Dear Ms. Dortch:

On August 31, 2015, the undersigned President of the National Association of Black Owned Broadcasters, Inc. ("NABOB") along with Francisco Montero of Fletcher, Heald & Hildreth, PLC, and David Honig, President Emeritus and Senior Advisor, Multicultural Media, Telecommunications and Internet Council ("MMTC") met with Commissioner Mignon Clyburn and Chanelle Hardy, Chief of Staff and Media Legal Advisor, to discuss the most important and effective proposal set forth in the AM Revitalization Notice: opening an application filing window for FM translators that would be limited to AM broadcast licensees.

As the Commission recognized in the Notice, the best way to help the largest number of AM stations to quickly and efficiently improve their service is to open such an AM-only window. Any other approach will make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for AM stations, to obtain the translators they urgently need to remain competitive and provide our communities with the service they deserve. Access to FM translators will increase the likelihood of available financing to small minority owned AM stations, which already suffer from a lack of capital.

For 65 years, AM radio has been the technological gateway for entrepreneurs of color in broadcasting. Two-thirds of minority-owned broadcast stations are AM radio stations. AM broadcast owners want nothing more than to improve their service to listeners. If the Commission truly aims to advance minority broadcast ownership, and to fulfill its goal of revitalizing AM radio, it should promptly open an FM translator filing window that is limited to AM licensees.

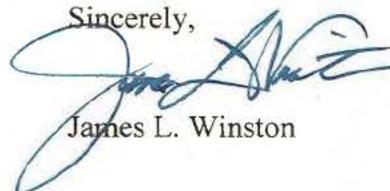

NABOB proposed that the Commission should open two filing windows. The first filing window should be limited to only licensees of Class C and Class D AM stations, because these stations operate with limited or no nighttime power. After completion of selection of licensees in the first filing window, the Commission could open a window for Class A and Class B licensees. Each licensee should be permitted to obtain only one FM translator per-AM station.

Francisco Montero stated that a 250 mile waiver for relocating translators is almost worse than doing nothing because it is just an opportunity for larger stations to corner the market on all the remaining translators, which are already very expensive and out of the reach of smaller AM stations. It will not increase the number of translators, so bidding wars will continue, which will further drive up the prices. Instead of expanding the universe of available translators, the waiver will expand the universe of large stations with which the smaller operators will have to compete. A letter was presented to the Commissioner signed by the CEOs of 50 minority owned AM radio licensees, collectively owning 140 AM stations.<sup>1</sup>

A letter was presented to the Commission dated 8/28/15 signed by 24 national civil rights organizations asking the Commission to act on the 10-year pending "Katrina Petition" for multilingual broadcasting in and immediately after emergencies.<sup>2</sup> MMTC found it startling that the Commission would hold a public forum on emergency communications on the 10th anniversary of Katrina and nowhere on the agenda address the Katrina Petition.

In accordance with Section 1.1206(b) the Commission's rules, this notice is being filed in the Commission's Electronic Comment Filing System.

Sincerely,

James L. Winston

Re: AM Radio Revitalization, MB Docket No. 13-249

Dear Chairman Wheeler:

For 65 years, AM radio has been the technological gateway for entrepreneurs of color in broadcasting. Two-thirds of minority-owned broadcast stations are AM radio stations. As minority AM broadcast owners, we want nothing more than to improve our service to listeners. Thus, we appreciate your commitment to advance the long-pending AM Revitalization proceeding.

Unfortunately, it has come to our attention that you are considering a reversal of course regarding the most important, effective proposal set forth in the AM Revitalization Notice: opening an application filing window for FM translators that would be limited to AM broadcast licensees. As the Commission recognized in the Notice, the best way to help the largest number of AM stations to quickly and efficiently improve their service is to open such an AM-only window. Any other approach will make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for AM stations, including many of our own, to obtain the translators they urgently need to remain competitive and provide our communities with the service they deserve.

If the Commission truly aims to advance minority broadcast ownership, and to fulfill its goal of revitalizing AM radio, it should promptly open an FM translator filing window that is limited to AM licensees.

Sincerely,

The CEOs of 50 Minority Owned AM Radio Licensees, collectively owning 140 AM stations

Hon. Tom E. Wheeler, Chairman
Federal Communications Commission

Washington, D.C. 20554

RE: Review of the Emergency Alert System (EB Docket No. 04-296); Recommendations of the Independent Panel Reviewing the Impact of Hurricane Katrina on Communications Networks (EB Docket 06-119)

Dear Chairman Wheeler:

The 10th anniversary of Hurricane Katrina will be August 29, 2015. The days leading up to, during, and after this natural disaster demonstrated the importance of multilingual emergency communications. For the over 100,000 Louisianans not proficient in English, their world went dark that day and remained that way for many days. These residents were unable to get answers to questions such as, “Where do I go to find shelter?” “How can I find my children?” and “Is the water safe to drink?” For the terrified multitude taking refuge on rooftops as the water rose, there was often little hope for survival.

The penalty for an adult’s or child’s lack of English proficiency must never be death.

In many cities with large Latino, Korean, Chinese and Vietnamese communities, few or no stations are broadcasting in those languages. When Hurricane Katrina decimated New Orleans in 2005, the city’s only Spanish language station was damaged and could not return to the air for eight critical days. During those eight days, over 100,000 Latinos had no landline service, no cellular telephony, no television, no radio, and no print media in their language. The city’s Vietnamese communities also went dark and many of these residents had no means to communicate their need for medical assistance. In a time of desperate need, finding medical facilities, shelter, food, and potable water was a matter of life and death for tens of thousands who were not fluent in English.

In response to this structural breakdown in our emergency communications, on September 20, 2005, three civil rights organizations filed the “Katrina Petition.” Its paradigm was a simple adaptation of the “designated hitter” system used by United States Army platoons when taking a hill in battle: in each radio market, the state EAS plan would designate which station(s) would fill in and provide multilingual information if no other station in that language remained on the air during or in the wake of the emergency.

In the ten years since Katrina, the Commission issued the National Broadband Plan. The agency has also resolved interoperability, intercarrier compensation, parts of universal service reform, and completed the open Internet proceeding. But after seven rounds of pleadings on the Katrina Petition, the Commission still has not yet acted to protect the lives and well-being of our 25,000,000 adults and children who are not proficient in English.

The Commission’s 2006 Katrina Independent Panel concluded that the agency must mandate multilingual emergency alerts. There is a clear consensus that only 100 percent ubiquitous, free local radio can always be counted upon to provide life-saving information at the most critical of times.

It is profoundly unfortunate that the Commission cannot rely on voluntary action to solve this problem. Since the Katrina Petition was filed, not a single state broadcast association – not one – has come up with a plan to ensure emergency service to non-English language minorities. The issue here is not whether there will be another Katrina; it is will we be prepared when it happens again. The lives of our fellow Americans should not hang in the balance. That is why life-saving emergency broadcasting obligations must be enforceable with teeth through a certification at license renewal time. Stations that declare that they “will not transmit, or even help other stations transmit, life-saving information in an emergency” should have their fitness to hold an FCC license formally reviewed.

The Commission should also bear in mind that among the greatest beneficiaries of multilingual emergency communications are first responders – as well as the taxpayers who underwrite their operations. The cost of rescuing and providing emergency health care is much less when the public has access to essential information in an emergency.

The 26 undersigned groups, representing thousands of consumers, people of color and other vulnerable groups, believe that the relief sought in the Petition is not burdensome. No elaborate new structure is needed: state EAS plans can easily be amended to incorporate reasonable methods of ensuring that life-saving information finds its way to the public in an emergency.

Therefore, the undersigned organizations respectfully urge the Commission to grant the Katrina Petition in its entirety, and do it now as the 10th anniversary and recollection of the wrath of Hurricane Katrina approaches.
