

It is critical that the National Weather Service have the ability to issue its new Storm Surge Watch/Warning products and the Extreme Wind Warning product with their own Emergency Alert System codes. Anything less would cause confusion amongst the public and will severely compromise the National Weather Service mission to protect life and property.