Dear FCC,

My name is Subur Tai and I live in Plano, TX.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because I want to be able to update my own wireless software?not rely on slow manufacturers shipping updates.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would make me feel less safe about the wireless networks I use and operate.

If we don't have open wireless internet then we'd lose the ability to be able to express ourselves and have our voices heard. Not only would this be ridiculous and result in the end of America's innovation, it is a flagrant infringement on countless Americans first Amendment rights.

Sincerely,

Subur Tai
