Dear FCC,

My name is josh murray and I live in e lansing, MI.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because I want to be able to update my own wireless software?not rely on slow manufacturers shipping updates.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would make me feel less safe about the wireless networks I use and operate.

Manufacturers software is often not sufficient for managing a network with over just a few users. The capable third party firmware developers have designed software that has made managing a Small network not only possible, but extremely efficient.

Sincerely,

josh murray
