Dear FCC,

My name is Richard Tovar and I live in Reedley, CA.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because I want to be able to update my own wireless software?not rely on slow manufacturers shipping updates.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would make me feel less safe about the wireless networks I use and operate.

Just because my phone can go on the internet should give the carrier the right to change the way its used what's the point of paying for a service if your not using it how you want to use it.

Sincerely,

Richard Tovar
