Dear FCC,

My name is Jordan Patterson and I live in Laramie, WY.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because I want to be able to update my own wireless software?not rely on slow manufacturers shipping updates.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would make me feel less safe about the wireless networks I use and operate.

I just believe that open wireless devices are something that shouldn't be turned into a way to strictly make money so that money becomes the bottom line and individuality and other creative voices don't get squashed in the process.

Sincerely,

Jordan Patterson
