Dear FCC,

My name is Brian Austin Peugh and I live in Crestview, FL.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because I don't want to see community innovations, such as mesh networking, get cut off.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would keep me from using my custom wireless configuration.

I don't want my options potentially limited on what I can see or hear on the internet because a few people want to influence us more strongly on their Wi-Fi service providers.

Sincerely,

Brian Austin Peugh
