Dear FCC,

My name is Matthew Wing and I live in Glendale, AZ.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because I want to be able to update my own wireless software?not rely on slow manufacturers shipping updates.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would make me feel less safe about the wireless networks I use and operate.

The internet should be a place of freedom of speech. It is enough that pages nerf their speeds to certain providers, making where you live dictate how you browse the internet. Net neutrality is a right, not an option.

Sincerely,

Matthew Wing
