Dear FCC,

My name is Alonso and I live in West Chicago, IL.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because I don't want to see community innovations, such as mesh networking, get cut off.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would make me feel less safe about the wireless networks I use and operate.

Taking the Internet away from people would be the equivalent of removing access to the choice of where we buy things
Restricting us to only what you believe everyone should get

Sincerely,

Alonso
