Dear FCC,

My name is Tyson Mairs and I live in ontario, OR.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because I don't want to see community innovations, such as mesh networking, get cut off.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would make me feel less safe about the wireless networks I use and operate.

drive down innovations that many third parties could come up with. Raise bills because a bottleneck will be created and worst of all slow progress in a field that has primarily been free for everyone to use.

Sincerely,

Tyson Mairs
