Dear FCC,

My name is Frank Fellerski and I live in Wind Point, WI.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because I don't want to see community innovations, such as mesh networking, get cut off.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would make me feel less safe about the wireless networks I use and operate.

I believe in a free and unregulated Internet because without the free internet, ideas cannot be spread nearly as quickly or effectively. This could lead to problems such as a lack of global awareness or a complication in spreading important or essential information.

Sincerely,

Frank Fellerski
