Dear FCC,

My name is Anonymous and I live in Anonamous, CO.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because I want to be able to update my own wireless software?not rely on slow manufacturers shipping updates.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would make me feel less safe about the wireless networks I use and operate.

Hey I'm just an average person giving my advice on the topic saying that if you want to ,you know, ruin the internet, then it probably isn't a good idea. If anyone wants profit, they should go somewhere else rather than demolishing the freedom of the internet itself. what the 99% want is Net Neutrality. KEEP IT THAT WAY!

Sincerely,

Anonymous
