Dear FCC,

My name is Tim Lee and I live in Barling, AR.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because I want to be able to update my own wireless software?not rely on slow manufacturers shipping updates.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would keep me from using my custom wireless configuration.

Paying for a limitless and free resource is the biggest smack in the face to an already over commercialized public. We refuse to pay for a service that has been free from the beginning just because greedy, pretentious, big corporations want to capitalize. Captive markets are not American. Screw you for even suggesting this and I hope our voices will be loud and clear when we say 'No! '.

Sincerely,
Eat My Shorts

Sincerely,

Tim Lee
