

60001338250.txt

It would be a good service to the public to allow all broadcast television to be available online. This would allow the public more options in the choice of source and foster greater competition. Internet distributors of broadcast TV should have the same rights as the big incumbent telcos, and cable and satellite operators.