

60001339818.txt

If the FCC really wants to improve delivery of critical warnings and information to Americans on their wireless phones, they will compel wireless carriers to unlock the FM chips on all of the smartphones they sell so the public can receive FM broadcast radio stations at no charge and get essential emergency information when data networks are unavailable.

Thank you.