Dear FCC,

My name is Abram Jones and I live in Granger, IN.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because I want to be able to update my own wireless software?not rely on slow manufacturers shipping updates.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would make me feel less safe about the wireless networks I use and operate.

America's internet shouldn't be controlled by money-hungry companies who promote unfair and unequal policies. It should be run by people with the people's best interest in mind. This may be you, The FCC, or a more fitting governmental body.

Sincerely,

Abram Jones
