Dear FCC,

My name is Leon and I live in Dekalb, IL.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because I don't want to see community innovations, such as mesh networking, get cut off.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would keep me from using my custom wireless configuration.

Everyone has a voice and should be heard. To muffle the freedom to speak out without having to pay for it is the same as limiting someone's right to speak.

Sincerely,

Leon
